ABOUT MYSELF

Motivated final-year BS English student with strong experience in teaching, research, youth leadership, intercultural exchange, policy and climate advocacy. I am an alum of the Study of the U.S. Institutes (SUSI) exchange program and a member of Young South Asian Leaders Initiative (YSALI). I have worked as an English Language Trainer and Visiting Lecturer, focusing on effective communication and student development. My academic interests center on communication, literature, politics, international relations, and the connection between language and society. Alongside this, I actively contribute to community and youth initiatives, with a strong interest in roles related to teaching, research, public policy, project management, and civic engagement.
